SCDA STAFF VISIT LOWCOUNTRY AGRITOURISM DESTINATIONS, CERTIFIED ROADSIDE MARKETS

BY CATHERINE DIXON, SCDA INTERN

The aroma of salt permeates the air, and soil soft from the afternoon rain and nearly black with nutrients sinks beneath your feet. You are embraced with centuries of history and a feeling of deep appreciation for the land and all it provides. You are in an unmistakably bountiful area of South Carolina: the Lowcountry.

On an overcast June afternoon, staff members of the South Carolina Department of Agriculture were reminded just how special the Lowcountry is with a visit to Boone Hall Farms. Though the Boone Hall name is often associated exclusively with the historic plantation grounds, its unique positioning as a working farm in the thick of bustling Mt. Pleasant piques visitors' interest.

Rick Benthall, Boone Hall's director of marketing, highlighted many of the attractions that beckon visitors from all over the United States. From U-pick blueberry fields, rows of intertwined muscadine grape vines, the annual Strawberry Festival to welcome the much-anticipated first bite of juicy strawberry sweetness, and Boone Hall Fright Nights under the crisp October air, Boone Hall Farms provides family-fun entertainment and education for locals and visitors alike.

Visitors can tour around the entire 738 acres that contribute to Boone Hall's variety of agricultural operations on a tractor tour, dubbed a visitor favorite. The iconic red and white striped awning, the hum of the tractor in the distance, the aroma of summer squash and zucchini blossoming in the distance, and the plethora of performances, tours, and exhibits before or after your tractor tour certainly make Boone Hall a place worth visiting again and again!

In addition to the Butterfly Café which houses a variety of locally jarred goods for sale, Boone Hall Farms recently announced the completion of construction of a roadside shed to host Willie's Roadside Market at Boone Hall Farms. The impressive structure proudly overlooks Highway 17 and invites local grocery shoppers, beachgoers, and farm visitors to stop in for their favorite fresh and local favorites. The roadside market opened to the public on July 1.

Certified Roadside Markets form an impressive scatterplot over South Carolina, but especially in the Lowcountry. On Johns Island, known for its sun-ripened tomatoes and imposing live oaks, stretches of recognizable highways such as Main Road, River Road, and Bohicket Road boast a number of roadside markets. Also on this list is Jeremy Storey's The Market at Storey Farms, which carries a wide variety of local fruits and vegetables and pantry items in addition to their own free-range eggs and poultry and pork products. Equipped with refrigeration technology for meats, dairy, and desserts, and an impressive selection of Certified SC Grown produce and Certified SC Products, The Market at Storey Farms is certainly worth a stop when you're in the area.

As many natives of the Lowcountry can attest, there is an abundance of agricultural gems all around. Whether you're a local, visiting for the first time, or exploring a new corner of the Lowcountry, be sure to stop and appreciate all of the agriculture that makes South Carolina so special.

SUMMER CROPS IN SC

I hope everyone had a happy Fourth of July. As I gathered with my family, we took some time to honor the sacrifices that created this nation. We could use a little more "courage of our founding fathers" nowadays. And, of course, we honored the farmers who grew the food we shared that day. South Carolina really comes into its own in the summer months, with fresh fruits and vegetables filling the markets, roadside stands, and fields.

The Fourth is an important date for the South Carolina watermelon industry in particular. Even people not likely to buy a watermelon the rest of the year will pick one up for their Independence Day picnic or cookout. South Carolina has more than 600 farmers who grow watermelons, and we have some large growers who export all over the country.

Meanwhile, as I write this, the last few weeks make us think that we're heading into the true heat of a steamy South Carolina summer. So far we are seeing plenty of the vegetables that people associate with summer in South Carolina - but in July, things really get serious. Sweet corn, cucumbers, summer squash, okra, peppers, blackberries, and more.

Of course, not all is rosy. Peach farmers are having a tough season. The peach crop took a worse hit than we initially believed: Many, though not all, producers lost peaches in the March freeze. The latest estimate I've seen is around a 75 percent loss for the state. The heavy rains in late June impacted some of the vegetable harvest schedule, but that should be of short duration.

We are still seeing South Carolina peaches in stores and markets, though, and I encourage folks to buy some.

If you're hungry for South Carolina produce, head out to a farmers market, Certified Roadside Market, or grocery store for some fresh fruits and veggies. Look for the Certified SC logo to help you find fresh, local food.

We've also had a good growing season for row crops up until recently. Adequate rainfall and moderate temperatures have pushed the corn, cotton, soybeans, and peanuts right along. As of this writing, we'd had a bit too much rain and the fields are looking pretty soggy, which always makes farmers worry about insects and disease, and the toll on their equipment.

I'll be praying for high yields and a good second half of the year.

Hugh Weathers

UPCOMING EVENTS

South Carolina Peach Festival

July 12 – 22

The South Carolina Peach Festival in Gaffney started in 1977 to bring Lowcountry residents and tourists “from the beaches to the peaches.” Festivalgoers can take in the famous mud bog, road race, and carnival while enjoying an endless supply of the state’s most succulent fruit. There’s a pageant, a dirt track race, a car cruise-in, lots of live music, a dessert contest and a whole lot more!

County Committee Elections

FARM SERVICE AGENCY NOW ACCEPTING NOMINATIONS FOR FARMERS AND RANCHERS TO SERVE ON LOCAL COUNTY COMMITTEES

BY USDA FSA

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is now accepting nominations for county committee members. Elections will occur in certain Local Administrative Areas (LAA) for members. LAAs are elective areas for Farm Service Agency (FSA) committees in a single county or multi-county jurisdiction. This may include LAAs that are focused on an urban or suburban area.

County committee members make important decisions about how Federal farm programs are administered locally. All nomination forms for the 2023 election must be postmarked or received in the local FSA office by Aug. 1, 2023.

Agricultural producers may be nominated for candidacy for the county committee if they:

- Participate or cooperate in a USDA program;
- Reside in the LAA that is up for election this year; and
- Meet basic eligibility requirements.

A cooperating producer is someone who has provided information about their farming or ranching operation to FSA, even if they have not applied or received program benefits. Customers can locate their LAA through a new GIS locator tool available at fsa.usda.gov/elections.

Individuals may nominate themselves or others and qualifying organizations may also nominate candidates. USDA encourages minority producers, women, and beginning farmers or ranchers to nominate, vote and hold office.

Committee members are vital to how FSA carries out disaster programs, as well as conservation, commodity and price support programs, county office employment and other agricultural issues.

MORE INFORMATION

South Carolina FSA will be hosting COC Election Informational Meeting across the state. Please visit the SC FSA events webpage to learn more about meetings held in each county. If a landowner cannot attend a meeting, please call the county office for more information on COC Elections.

fsa.usda.gov/state-offices/South-Carolina/state-events/index

Producers should contact their local FSA office today to register and find out how to get involved in their county's election, including if their LAA is up for election this year. To be considered, a producer must be registered and sign an FSA-669A nomination form. The form and other information about FSA county committee elections are available at fsa.usda.gov/elections.

Election ballots will be mailed to eligible voters beginning Nov. 6, 2023.

2023 LEGAL NOTICE

CALL FOR NOMINATIONS FOR CANDIDATES TO FILL VACANCIES ON THE SOUTH CAROLINA PORK BOARD

Pursuant to the provisions of the "Agricultural Commodities Marketing Act" and the Marketing Order for South Carolina Pork issued by the Agriculture Commission of South Carolina, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the terms of office of the listed members of the South Carolina Pork Board, expire on August 31, 2023, and, therefore, the listed vacancies shall occur at that time.

DISTRICT 1: Jimmy Bailey, Jr., Nichols, SC
David Haltiwanger, Silverstreet, SC
Frank Strickland, Nichols, SC
Neal Baxley, Jr., Mullins, SC

DISTRICT 2: Craig Whisenhunt, Orangeburg, SC

If you are interested in becoming a SC Pork Board member, you will need to request a petition. This petition can be requested by calling (803) 734-9807, (803) 734-2217, or by emailing elloyd@scda.sc.gov. All petitions must be received by Friday, July 14, 2023. For a petition to be eligible/accepted, it must be signed by no less than five pork producers from the counties of the district seat you are petitioning for.

Terms of office are for 3 years. To qualify, a candidate must be a resident of South Carolina and be actively engaged in the production of pork within the State of South Carolina for a period of no less than one year. Additionally, during that one-year period, candidate will have derived a substantial portion of his income there from and shall continue to do so during their term of office. The Pork Board holds approximately 4 quarterly meetings per year to conduct their business. Reimbursement for mileage is paid for travel to and from meetings. In addition, a $50 per diem is paid per meeting attended.

Upper State District 1 includes the Counties of Abbeville, Anderson, Cherokee, Chester, Chesterfield, Darlington, Dillon, Fairfield, Florence, Greenville, Greenwood, Horry, Kershaw, Lancaster, Laurens, Lee, Marion, Marlboro, McCormick, Newberry, Oconee, Pickens, Spartanburg, Union, and York

CLEMSON TRUSTEES OFFICIALLY APPROVE DEVELOPMENT OF NEW COLLEGE OF VETERINARY MEDICINE

BY CLEMSON UNIVERSITY

Following a historic approval by its Board of Trustees, Clemson University is preparing to launch the first College of Veterinary Medicine in the State of South Carolina. The approval follows the completion of the FY24 state budget, which includes significant support for the new college from Governor Henry McMaster and the South Carolina General Assembly.

The University's first professional school, the Clemson University College of Veterinary Medicine plans to enroll the first students in Fall 2026 with the first class of veterinarians graduating in 2030, and the college will leverage the University's existing animal health programs and infrastructure to create a veterinary medicine workforce to fill a statewide shortage of veterinarians.

"Today is a historic day. We are thrilled that Clemson University has received landmark funding to establish the State of South Carolina's first college of veterinary medicine," said Clemson University President Jim Clements. "Clemson University is continuing its mission of positively impacting the lives of our students and the citizens of South Carolina. The new college will continue to elevate the State of South Carolina by meeting the needs of our communities, retaining top talent, supporting the state's economy and protecting animal and human health."

"Veterinarians today play an increasingly important role, in addition to caring for both companion and farm animals, protecting public health playing an essential role in food safety as well as in detection and control of zoonotic diseases," said Boyd Parr, co-chair of the Clemson College of Veterinary Medicine steering committee and retired South Carolina State Veterinarian. "This new veterinary college can produce the veterinarians and research that will contribute to a better future for our citizens and our animals."

The new college will use a distributed model of clinical teaching, where students learn their basic sciences, anatomy, pre-clinical skills and communication skills during their first three years on campus, after which students conduct clinical learning in distributed learning sites throughout the state.

The feasibility study also found Clemson University to have the academic and regulatory programs, land and on-campus animal science farms and infrastructure to position it ideally to support and contain a veterinary college.

Some diseases, called zoonotic diseases, can be spread between animals and people. More than half of all infections people can get can be spread by animals, including rabies, Salmonella, and West Nile virus.

Currently, the state provides tuition coverage for 46 students to pursue veterinary education at Tuskegee University (seven), Mississippi State University (10) and University of Georgia (29) at a cost of over $6 million per year.

BACKGROUND

The approval of the new college follows the creation of a steering committee comprised of experts in veterinary and human health and an independent feasibility study conducted over the past 18 months.

The feasibility study found:

- 33% of South Carolina counties have fewer than five veterinarians.
- 48% of the state's counties have fewer than 10 veterinarians.
- Nearly 200 South Carolina students were actively enrolled at 13 veterinary colleges outside the state (2022).
- The qualified pool that was not admitted to a veterinary program is estimated to be 500 – 1,000 (2018).

SOUTH CAROLINA FARM BUREAU LAUNCHES LAND TRUST

BY SCFB

Chester, S.C. – South Carolina Farm Bureau officially launched the SCFB Land Trust June 21 at an event in Lowrys. The Land Trust will focus on conserving working farmlands, ranches and forests.

"Farmers need options to protect their land and their legacy," said Harry Ott, South Carolina Farm Bureau Federation President. "We formed the Land Trust to provide an option to farmers across the state that doesn't end in their land being sold for development."

Since 2001, South Carolina has lost nearly 290,000 acres of farmland and is the third fastest growing state in the nation. If this trend continues, by 2040 South Carolina will lose another 436,700 acres of farmland – the equivalent of 3,600 farms, $239 million in economic output and 5,900 jobs. The Land Trust will help to ensure agricultural lands can be passed to future generations while providing present financial benefit.

"Farmers trust farmers," said Jeff Wilson, owner of Cotton Hills Farms located in Chester County.

South Carolina Farm Bureau launched its Land Trust June 21 at an event in Lowrys. The Land Trust will focus specifically on working farms, ranches and forestlands. Rusty Darby, State Board Director for Chester County presented a $10,000 check on behalf of the county to aid in funding the Land Trust. (From L to R: Harry Ott, SCFB President; Rusty Darby, Chester County State Board Director; Gary Spires, SCFB Executive Director.)

$10,000 donation to aid in funding the Land Trust.

As one of the first state Farm Bureaus in the nation to launch such a program, South Carolina Farm Bureau is committed to helping farmers preserve their livelihoods that have spanned generations. The Land Trust will give agricultural landowners peace of mind knowing their land is protected and its purpose preserved.

To date, the SCFB Land Trust has already received twenty-four applications. Farmers interested in enrolling their land in the SCFB Land Trust should visit scfb.org/landtrust for more information.

South Carolina Farm Bureau is a grassroots, non-profit organization that celebrates and supports family farmers, locally grown food and our rural lands through legislative advocacy, education and community outreach. The organization, founded in 1944, serves nearly 90,000 member families in 47 chapters. For more information, please visit scfb.org/landtrust.

"The South Carolina Farm Bureau Land Trust will make it easier for farmers to protect their land, and I hope farmers will consider this as a viable solution." Chester County Farm Bureau made a

ACRE AWARDS $185K TO SC ENTREPRENEURS IN AGRIBUSINESS

COLUMBIA – A goat dairy, an artisanal jam company, a produce-and-flower farm, and an organic vegetable grower are among the South Carolina businesses awarded new funding through the South Carolina Department of Agriculture’s Agribusiness Center for Research and Entrepreneurship (ACRE).

Twelve entrepreneurs will share $185,000 in funding for their innovative agribusiness ventures.

The finalists pitched to a panel of judges on June 7 and were scored based on their business plans, a five-minute video presentation and their demonstrated history of business success. The diverse group of awardees encompass animal agriculture, specialty food producers, produce farms, and new and established farmers:

1. Split Creek Farm, a goat farm and cheesemaker in Anderson, is modernizing its milk bottling to better meet customer demand. (Anderson County)
2. Sakhar Jams, a Columbia company that makes artisanal jams using Certified South Carolina fruit and Indian flavors, will leverage the grant for warehouse and kitchen space. (Richland County)
3. Paxville-based Grateville Acres, a diversified farm supplying produce and flowers in a food desert, plans to add a multi-use wash/pack building. (Clarendon County)
4. Bio Way Farm, which has been growing organic produce since 2004 in Ware Shoals, plans to build a new packing shed and commercial kitchen to reduce produce waste and support its continued expansion. (Greenwood County)

Split Creek Farm

Sakhar Jams

Peculiar Pig Farm

Altman Farm and Mill

10. Altman Farm and Mill, based in Florence, plans to adopt more efficient packaging and scale up production with new equipment. (Florence County)
11. Fifth generation farmer Marvin Ross and his brother Jada Ross raise heritage pigs using woodlot practices at Peculiar Pig Farm in Dorchester. They plan to open a butcher shop with freezer storage to achieve more meat processing efficiency. (Dorchester County)
12. Set in Stone Sustainability Farm of Jenkinsville will build new facilities to develop its agricultural education mission. (Fairfield County)

“These finalists were selected from a larger pool of applicants, and it wasn’t an easy choice — we had an outstanding bunch of entrepreneurs,” said ACRE Executive Director Kyle Player. “ACRE continues to attract and nurture some of our state’s top talent in agribusiness.”

Commissioner of Agriculture Hugh Weathers congratulated the awardees.

“Through ACRE, we spotlight and assist some truly deserving entrepreneurs,” Weathers said. “To ensure a bright future for South Carolina agriculture, we need to continue supporting their creativity, drive and vision.”

SCDA founded ACRE in 2018 to help identify and nurture new ideas and businesses in the Palmetto State’s agribusiness sector. ACRE also partners with Clemson Extension to offer a curriculum program each fall to train and mentor beginning agricultural entrepreneurs and prepare them to seek advanced award funding. To learn more, visit acre-sc.com.

5. Gullah Man Oyster Co. is working to transition from wild harvest to farmed oysters on its Saint Helena Island farm. (Beaufort County)
6. Old Tyme Bean Co. is expanding its shelling capacity to process more butterbeans, field peas and other local legumes. (Calhoun County)
7. Warrenton-based Purebred Compost creates compost for area farms using waste from horse farms and green debris from landscapers. They aim to buy a compost mixer and bag filler to scale up their operations. (Aiken County)
8. Momma B’s Farm, a regenerative farm on 20 acres, will market its teas and produce boxes and branch out into honey production. (Edgefield County)
9. Joyful Souls Heirloom Nursery, a seedling farm based in Columbia, aims to expand its garden education mission through new teaching tools. (Richland County)

SCDA SEEKS COMMENTS AHEAD OF RESILIENT FOOD SYSTEMS INFRASTRUCTURE COOPERATIVE AGREEMENT

BY SCDA

The purpose of the U.S. Department of Agriculture’s Resilient Food Systems Infrastructure (RFSI) program is to build resilience in the middle of the food supply chain; to provide more and better markets to small farms and food businesses; and to support the development of value-added products for consumers, fair prices, fair wages, and new and safe job opportunities.

Stakeholders may include, but are not limited to, small and underserved business owners, historically underserved farmers or ranchers, and other businesses that qualify under the Small Business Administration (SBA) categories of small disadvantaged businesses, women-owned small businesses, and veteran-owned small businesses.

Later this year our agency will be announcing a competitive infrastructure grant program. Funds will support expanded capacity for the aggregation, processing, manufacturing, storing, transporting, wholesaling, and distribution of locally and regionally produced food products, including specialty crops, dairy, grains for consumption, aquaculture, and other food products, excluding meat and poultry.

We will be soliciting public comment about the RFSI program until July 28, 2023. To submit a comment to SCDA about the RFSI program, email rfsi@scda.sc.gov. Please write “RFSI Comment” in the subject line of the email. Public comments will be accepted only at the above email address until 7/28/23 at noon EST.

No applications for South Carolina’s RFSI funds will be accepted until a later date; the open application period will be announced and posted on SCDA’s RFSI page, agriculture.sc.gov/rfsi, as well as through its social media channels.

Additional USDA information on RFSI can be found at ams.usda.gov/services/grants/rfsi.
